The Cacti, from the singularity of their form and the splendor of their flowers are, very deservedly, becoming general favorites among the admirers of the curious and the beautiful. No class of plants more amply repay the attention they require.

They are much better adapted, most of them, to parlor culture than hard wooded plants.

25 to 50 cents each—$3 to $5 per dozen.

Although these are hardy plants, yet they will not bloom perfectly in our region, except in the house, as frosts generally come on about the commencement of their blooming season. They are, however, great ornaments for the Green House or Parlor during October, November and December, when flowers are scarce, and being of the easiest culture, are well worthy of attention. The above are among the best cultivated.

N. B.—After they have done blossoming, they may be put in a cold cellar till spring, and then turned out in the garden till towards autumn, when they are again wanted for potting.

The Verbena is one of the richest of all recent acquisitions to the American Flower Garden. It is multiplied and cultivated with so much ease, that none need be without it; indeed, it is indispensable where flowers are cultivated at all. It blooms in the greatest profusion the whole summer through, and until the ground is frozen hard in the fall. It is peculiarly adapted to our hot and dry climate—when all else seems to shrink and wither, the Verbena is brightest; being a trailing plant, it shows to the greatest advantage, when planted in groups on raised beds or mounds. It is also a beautiful pot plant, when furnished with a slender frame-work to spread on.

NEW PHLOXES, ALL HARDY.

In addition to the list of species on page 49 of our Nursery Catalogue, the following new and beautiful varieties are now offered. This is one of the most ornamental and easily cultivated border perennials in the whole catalogue of those cultivated, offering a succession of gay flowers from May till November, the whole floral year.

JAPAN LILIES.

[Price from $1 00 to $2 00 each.]

LILIUM LANCIFOLIUM

_____	Album
_____	Punctatum
_____	Peregrinum (Testatceum)

And many other new and hybrid varieties of great beauty, from the splendid collection of Col. Wilder, of Boston.

No other family of plants has excited so much attention and admiration within the last two or three years, as these, since their introduction from Japan. They surpass all the other of the Lily tribe in beauty and fragrance. They have, so far, been held at enormous prices, and at the present moment they are advertised, in European catalogues, at $1 to $20 each, according to the size of the bulbs and rarity of the sort.

GLADIOLUS.

GLADIOLUS	ramosus
_____	Christianus
_____	Lehmanii
_____	pudibundus
_____	gloriosus
_____	gandavensis

These are magnificent new hybrids, recently originated in Germany.— Flowering bulbs of the above and several others, will be for sale in the autumn. They are treated precisely the same as the old well known sorts, planted out in May, and taken up and placed in the cellar in autumn.

BOURBON ROSES.

This is a new and beautiful class of Roses. Their habits of growth are remarkably vigorous, with large, shining foliage. The flowers are in clusters, and are large and beautifully formed. When planted in the open ground, they bloom freely all the season, from June till November, and can be easily protected, with leaves or litter, so as to withstand the winter. They are also magnificent house Roses, and bloom freely in pots in the winter.

CHINESE OR BENGAL ROSES.

DAILY, OR EVER-BLOOMING.

Though these are mostly cultivated as Green-House, or Parlor Plants, yet their beauties are much more fully developed when planted in the border, or in the beds in the Flower Garden; there they afford a profusion of flowers throughout the whole summer and autumn, until every thing is wrapt up in winter. By covering them with a box, or with earth, or with rough manure, they may be safely left out all winter. On the return of spring, they may be uncovered, the decayed branches pruned off, and the earth around them dressed, and in a month or two they will again put forth their blossoms.

TEA-SCENTED ROSES.

This class is held in the highest estimation by all lovers of the Rose, not only for their delightful fragrance, which give them their name, but for their large and very beautiful flowers. Like the preceding classes, they flourish well in the open ground, and flower profusely all summer.—The ground for them should be mellow, light, and highly manured. Where it is desirable to leave them out during winter, they can be protected in the same way as recommended for the Bengals and Bourbons.

NOISETTE ROSES.

The Noisette Rose is distinguished by the immensely large clusters in which its flowers are produced, numbering frequently forty to fifty flowers and buds in a single corymb. They, like the three classes preceding, flower in the open ground the whole summer; and most of them are hardy enough to withstand our winters by being sheathed up with straw, or laid down and covered with leaves or litter. They should have a deep and very rich soil. Chromatella and Solfatare have created more excitement among Rose fanciers, than any other recent production. They are really splendid. We have now (Sept. 28,) a splendid bloom of both in the open ground.
